Unemployed youth protest delay in job notifications in Hyderabad

Hyderabad: Protests against the Telangana Congress government's delay in issuing job calendar and recruitment notifications continued on Saturday, with unemployed youth, along with Bharatiya Janata Yuva Morcha (BJYM) activists, calling in a rally from City Central Library in Chikkadpally to RTC X Roads. Several of the youth, who staged a protest at the library, were detained by the police. During this process, some activists' clothes were torn and a few suffered bruises. The protesters demanded the government honour its assembly election promise of filling up 2 lakh vacancies. The unemployed youth lamented that the Congress party came into government, assuring that it would be a people's government. However, the unemployed said they were locked inside the library, fearing a large-scale protest. "The Congress party came to power by making us believe that they provide people's governance. By locking us inside the library – Is this Praja Palana?"

The Congress betrayed us by promising 2 lakh jobs within one year in the government," Narender, an unemployed youth preparing for Groups' recruitment. Speaking to media persons, a woman preparing for the Group's recruitment lamented they were clueless as to when the recruitment notifications would be released. "Parents are struggling so much to provide education to us for our better future. But the government is not even bothered about our issues. Despite there being clear vacancies in various departments, the government is not notifying them. We demand the government immediately release notifications," she added.

Irrigation department begins draw-down of Singur reservoir for repairs

Sangareddy: The irrigation officials have started emptying the Singur multipurpose project, built across river Manjeera near Singur in Pulkal mandal, on Saturday to take up repair works suggested by the National Dam Safety Review Panel (NDSRP) of the National Dam Safety Authority (NDSA). The irrigation department has begun releasing 2,500 cusecs of water downstream by operating the hydroelectric project. The water storage will be reduced to 8 TMCft in the next 30 to 40 days, with the released water to be utilised downstream. The project now has 16 TMCft of water against its full storage capacity of 29.91 TMCft. In the wake of the NDSRP warning, which found damage to the project's earthen embankment and upstream revetment during its visit last summer, the storage was restricted to 16 TMCft this year despite abundant inflows from upstream. Meanwhile, the irrigation department has already taken up repair works on the upstream revetment with an outlay of Rs. 16 crore. While depleting the reservoir, an expert team will monitor the condition of the dam and the earthen embankment and assess the extent of damage before taking up further repairs.

The Session will commence on 28 January 2026 and continue till 2 April 2026. The first phase concludes on 13 February 2026, with Parliament reassembling on 9 March 2026, a vital step towards meaningful debate and people-centric governance," Rijiju said in a post on X. According to reports, Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman is likely to table the Budget on February 1, which falls on a Sunday — a rare occurrence that would require special arrangements. The Economic Survey, providing a comprehensive review of the economy, is anticipated to be laid before Parliament on January 29 or 30. The Budget Session traditionally begins with the President's address to a joint sitting of Lok Sabha and Rajya Sabha, outlining the government's policy priorities and vision. This address will take place on the opening day, January 28. The announcement sets the stage for one of the most important parliamentary events of the year, during which the Union Budget for the financial year 2026-27 is expected to be presented. Rijiju's post stressed the government's commitment to transparent and effective legislative processes. The two-phase format allows for initial discussions on the Budget and other key matters, followed by detailed scrutiny in standing committees during the recess, before final deliberations and passage of financial bills. This session comes at a crucial time as the government focuses on economic growth, fiscal consolidation, and addressing emerging challenges in sectors like infrastructure, employment, and sustainability. Parliamentarians from across parties are expected to engage in intensive debates on taxation, expenditure, and policy reforms. The formal approval by President Murmu marks the procedural start of preparations for the session, with both Houses gearing up for what promises to be a packed legislative calendar.

On the ED raids in West Bengal

The Enforcement Directorate (ED)'s searches on January 8, in Kolkata, at locations linked to the Indian Political Action Committee (I-PAC), are a development set to be repeated in the run-up to the West Bengal Assembly election. I-PAC is a political consultancy firm that spearheaded the ruling Trinamool Congress (TMC)'s election campaign in 2021. The ED said the searches were part of an ongoing money laundering investigation, unrelated to the election, and aimed at tracing the proceeds of the crime. The TMC held protests across the State on Friday. Even as the raids were on, Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee went to the I-PAC office and accused the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP)-led central government of using central agencies for political vendetta. She called the raids an "attack on democracy", and accused the ED of attempting to seize the TMC's internal political strategy, data and digital material ahead of the election. The ED claims its officials were obstructed and that documents were removed from the premises, and has approached the Calcutta High Court. This is not the first time that central agencies—the ED, the Central Bureau of Investigation and the IT Department—have confronted State governments run by Opposition parties. A pattern is visible across time and space that makes Ms. Banerjee's claims notable, and the ED's assertion that its actions are unlinked to politics, feeble.

Regardless of the merits of the case, the ED's action and its timing bring into the spotlight several issues related to the fairness and integrity of the electoral process, Centre-State relations, and election funding. Incumbents at the Centre and in the States enjoy certain advantages in any election, but the vigilance and fairness of the Election Commission of India, the judiciary, the media and the IT Department could level the playing field to some extent. Partisan behaviour, institutional shortcomings and the weaponisation of state power by incumbents are factors that can render such checks and balances ineffective or impossible. ED raids that tangentially target the TMC follow a pattern of the incumbent at the Centre using state power to corner a party that runs the State government. It is worth recalling that the IT department froze all bank accounts of the principal Opposition party, the Congress, during the 2024 general election. The very fact that agencies and institutions tend to be hyperactive against Opposition governments and parties, and never against the BJP or its associates, is itself revealing. The BJP appears willing to stretch all rules of the game to win in West Bengal, but it should also consider what India might be losing in that pursuit: the confidence of the people in the integrity of state institutions.

Hyderabad: The IAS and IPS Officers Associations have strongly condemned the allegations levelled against women IAS officers in a recent broadcast aired by a vernacular news channel. In the broadcast, serious allegations were made against a woman IAS officer and a Minister. "The said broadcast referred to family discomfort, alleged phone calls and WhatsApp chats as purported evidence. These claims were entirely fabricated, defamatory and devoid of any factual verification," Jayesh Ranjan, Secretary of the Telangana IAS Officers Association said in a press release. The IAS Officers Association demanded an immediate and unconditional public apology, besides withdrawal of the said content from all platforms. The Association was also actively exploring all available legal remedies to ensure accountability of individuals responsible for creation and dissemination of the derogatory content, he said. The Telangana IPS Officers' Association extended solidarity with the IAS Officers' Association and condemned what it called "irresponsible, malicious and defamatory" content aired by certain media platforms, wherein "baseless allegations and insinuations" were levelled against serving women IAS officers. "Targeting women officers through unverified claims, fabricated narratives, and selective distortion of administrative processes is not only reprehensible but also reflects a deeply regressive and misogynistic mindset," Telangana IPS Officers Association Secretary Vikram Singh Mann said in a press release. LPG becomes huge burden for mid-day meal workers in Karimnagar Karimnagar: Preparing meals using liquid petroleum gas (LPG) has become another burden for mid-day meal workers, who are already facing problems due to delays in the release of bills and salaries. To avoid students being exposed to health problems caused by smoke from firewood used for cooking food under the mid day meal programme, district officials decided to switch to LPG instead of firewood. For the first time, the system has been introduced in the State. Apart from issuing instructions to mid day meal agencies in this regard, strict directions were also given to suspend headmasters of schools if meals were prepared using firewood. As part of the new initiative, two LPG cylinders were supplied to each school a month ago. Workers, who had been preparing meals using firewood, were forced to shift to LPG. Although LPG cylinders were supplied, cooking stoves were not provided. As a result, agencies had to purchase stoves at their own cost. Moreover, the use of LPG has become a major problem as the two cylinders supplied to each school are not sufficient for institutions with high student strength. An LPG cylinder gets exhausted within three to four days in schools with a strength of 200 to 250 students, forcing agencies to buy more cylinders by spending their own money. When firewood was used, agencies spent Rs. 8,000 to Rs. 9,000 every six months. Now, almost the same amount has to be spent every month to purchase LPG, agency workers said. Speaking to Telangana Today, Mid Day Meal Workers' Association district president Burra Manjula said that cooking meals using LPG had become a big problem for them. They were asked to procure cylinders from Indane LPG agencies in their respective areas. However, LPG agency authorities were not supplying more than two cylinders a month, she said. Meanwhile, fearing suspension, school headmasters were not allowing the use of firewood even if LPG cylinders got exhausted in the middle of cooking. Earlier, workers used to procure firewood from nearby forest areas by engaging labourers at lower cost, but now the process has become more expensive, she added. The government has instructed them to prepare meals using LPG but has not allocated any funds for the purpose. While stating that they were ready to cook food with LPG, she urged the government to supply more cylinders at subsidised rates.

Trump signals possible action on Greenland over strategic concerns

Washington: US President Donald Trump said the United States would move to secure Greenland if necessary, warning that failure to act would allow China or Russia to establish a strategic foothold near American territory. Speaking to reporters, Trump said Greenland's location made it critical to US national security and dismissed suggestions that existing military arrangements were sufficient. "We're going to do something on Greenland," Trump said. "Whether they like it or not." The president said the United States preferred a negotiated solution but made clear that alternatives remained on the table. "I would like to make a deal, you know, the easy way," Trump said. "But if we don't do it the easy way, we're going to do it the hard way." Trump argued that ownership, not leases or temporary arrangements, was necessary to ensure long-term security.

boat land there 500 years ago doesn't mean that they own the land," he said. Trump said he respected Denmark and described the country as an ally, but stressed that US interests would prevail.

"I'm a fan of Denmark," Trump said. "They've been very nice to me." He also linked the Greenland issue to NATO, saying the alliance depended heavily on US leadership. "I saved NATO," Trump said. "If it weren't for me, you wouldn't have NATO right now." Trump said China and Russia would be blocked from establishing any presence in Greenland, regardless of the method used. "We're not going to allow Russia or China to occupy Greenland," he said. "That's what's going to happen if we don't." He added that the United States remained open to cooperation but not at the expense of security. "I like China, I like Russia," Trump said. "But I don't want them as a neighbor in Greenland." Greenland, an autonomous territory of Denmark, has grown in strategic importance as Arctic shipping routes and military access have expanded due to climate change and geopolitical competition.
